Open Book Publishers Community Interest Company Accountants' Report

Accountants' report to the directors of Open Book Publishers Community Interest Company

You consider that the company is exempt from an audit for the year ended 30 September 2020. You have acknowledged, on the balance sheet, your responsibilities for complying with the requirements of the Companies Act 2006 with respect to accounting records and the preparation of accounts. These responsibilities include preparing accounts that give a true and fair view of the state of affairs of the company at the end of the financial year and of its profit or loss for the financial year.

In accordance with your instructions, we have prepared the accounts which comprise the Profit and Loss Account and the Balance Sheet from the accounting records of the company and on the basis of information and explanations you have given to us.

We have not carried out an audit or any other review, and consequently we do not express any opinion on these accounts.

PART 1 - GENERAL DESCRIPTION OF THE COMPANY'S ACTIVITIES AND IMPACT

In the space provided below, please insert a general account of the company's activities in the financial year to which the report relates, including a description of how they have benefited the community.

During this accounting year OBP published 35 new academic titles, bringing our total number of books published to 195. During the year we recorded 938,095 users of free online editions of our titles, from 234 countries and states (ISO territories). In addition, we recorded 849,776 views of free online versions of individual book chapters — bringing the total number of interactions with our free editions to 1787871 this year (a total too elegant to be rounded!). This represents an increase in online readership of over 38% over the previous year. Notably India, Nigeria, Philippines and South Africa were amongst the top 10 countries with the greatest number of online readers during the accounting period.

Our publishing initiative addresses the needs of disadvantaged readers worldwide who, thanks to OBP, can access free educational resources that would be otherwise unavailable. This has taken on even greater significance during the global COVID pandemic, where access to open and remotely accessible resources has been vital. We have also produced a range of resources to help people access open educational resources during this period, including our COVID19 Information and Resources guide: https://blogs.openbookpublishers.com/covid19-information-and-resources-from-obp/ and our curated list of OER Repositories and Platforms: https://oer-obp.pubpub.org/pub/wac0y6kx/release/9."

We were particularly pleased to publish new books focusing on the climate crisis, including Earth 2020: An Insider's Guide to a Rapidly Changing Planet, edited by Phillippe Tortell (http://doi.org/10.11647/OBP.0193), which has been accessed and downloaded over 15,000 times all over the world (https://reports.openbookpublishers.com/public/report/10.11647/obp.0193) and Global Warming in Local Discourses: How Communities around the World Make Sense of Climate Change, edited by Michael Brüggemann and Simone Rödder (2020, http://doi.org/10.11647/OBP.0212), which has been accessed over 1,500 times (https://reports.openbookpublishers.com/public/report/10.11647/obp.0212).

Two of our titles were awarded prizes for academic scholarship, recognising that free scholarship can also be of the highest quality. We were also very happy to once again be included in the NatWest SE100 list of the top 100 social enterprises.

With production costs of around £5,000 per title (about 1/5th of the costs incurred by traditional University Presses in the US) we deliver top-level scholarly books and offer innovative educational technologies to a huge number of readers worldwide. In addition to creating printed editions we also publish works in an array of digital formats, including pdf, epub, mobi, html and XML. The software we have created to generate these editions is all open source and available to freely download and use from our github account.

During this period we have also commenced the COPIM project (Community-led Open Infrastructures for Monographs, https://www.copim.ac.uk/), an international, £3.5 million project building open, community-governed infrastructure to support OA book publishing. COPIM will significantly improve the funding, dissemination, and archiving of OA books, enabling new presses to publish OA while supporting existing publishers to flip to OA. Our progress is documented here: https://copim.pubpub.org/. OBP is taking a leadership role in 3 of the work packages (WPs 2,5&7) as well as in the outreach processes. OBP software engineers (Javier Arias and Ross Higman) are directly responsible for the development of Open Dissemination and Preservation Systems for OA books for the project, which are all being openly built as open source products (https://thoth.pub). COPIM has been identified as a 'Supporting Action' for UKRI's new Open Access policy (https://www.ukri.org/funding/information-for-award-holders/openaccess/openaccess-review/), a major new OA policy being implemented by the UK's national research organisation, demonstrating that UKRI expects it to make a substantial contribution to the long-term viability of Open Access book publishing in the UK.

In April Open Book Publishers also commenced a study into innovative business models for Open Access publishing in Europe, as part of the EU funded OPERAS-P project, led by OBP staff member Agata Morka

Towards the end of this period OBP helped found and launch the Open Access Books Network (www.oabooksnetwork.org), an international network with almost 250 members facilitating online events, discussion, and writing about OA books, and OBP staff member Lucy Barnes contributed to the creation of the OAPEN Open Access Books Toolkit (https://www.oapen.org/resources/15152035-oa-books-toolkit)

PART 2 – CONSULTATION WITH STAKEHOLDERS – Please indicate who the company's stakeholders are; how the stakeholders have been consulted and what action, if any, has the company taken in response to feedback from its consultations? If there has been no consultation, this should be made clear.

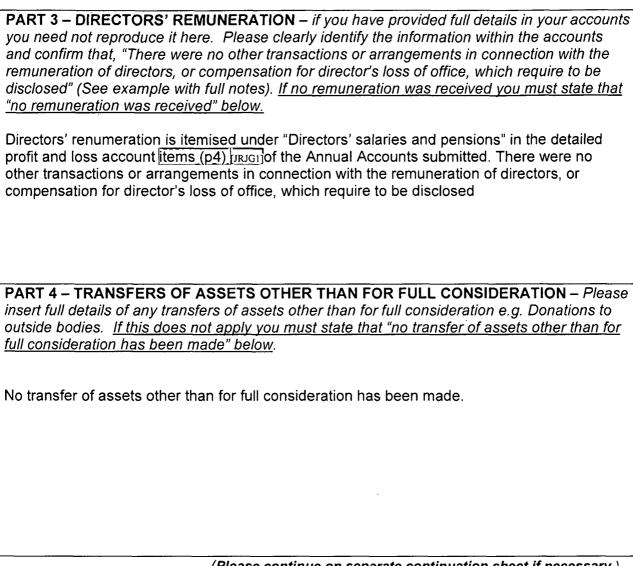

Readers of scholarly works: All the titles we publish are rigorously reviewed by scholars in the field. We take the feedback received by these scholars extremely seriously and publication decisions are entirely reliant on their responses. In many cases authors make significant changes to their works in response to the feedback received. We also record (and link to) post publication reviews of our works. Sometimes these reviews raise technical production possibilities and suggestions which we have been able to implement subsequently. We provide commentary functions on all our titles where readers can ask questions and make comments, and we receive direct feedback from readers all over the world – primarily via email, twitter and facebook.

Academic authors: We encourage and solicit feedback from authors on their experiences both during and soon after publication. On the whole this feedback has been very positive, but we take feedback seriously and work to respond to suggestions made.

Academic institutions: We continue to develop and expand the number of universities participating in our library membership scheme. We work closely with librarians of member universities to discuss and develop our operations and processes. We are also working with several universities and research centres in developing their own Open Access publishing programmes.

Editorial Boards: Feedback is regularly solicited from members of various editorial and advisory boards.

(If applicable, please just state "A social audit report covering these points is attached").
